The "J-Startup" program is a government startup support measure listed in the "New Economic Policy Package," which was approved by the Cabinet in December, 2017. It is placed with importance as a measure for Japan to achieve sustainable economic growth, and proposes the objective of creating 20 companies including unicorns and listed venture companies by 2023. With this aim, a total of 92 companies with the high expectation to succeed on the world stage, were nominated out of approximately 10,000 Japanese startup companies by top venture capitalists, accelerators, and those in charge of innovation of large companies, in addition to rigorous examination by the external review committee.
